

$10,000 is all it takes to change a life

In only eight weeks, Bioversity prepares working-age adults from low-income and underrepresented households for biomanufacturing and lab operations careers at Massachusetts life sciences companies.

These are adults who have been historically shut out of this industry not for lack of ability, but for lack of a degree and an employer willing to take a chance on a non-traditional hire. Bioversity closes both gaps: we select students the way employers hire, train them in the skills the industry asks for, and place them into full-time jobs.

Massachusetts expects 14,000 net new life sciences jobs over the next five years. The talent to fill many of them already lives in the communities around our labs, ready to enter through non-traditional pathways if someone builds the door.

Your donation helps us build that door and change the lives of our next students.
